In 2019, over 500 exhibitors and more than 20,000 participants from 83 countries took part in ANGA COM. Among the largest exhibitors were telecom vendors such as Appeer TV, AVM, Casa Systems, Cisco, CommScope, Nokia, Synamedia, Teleste and Wisi. The speaker line-up of the conference programme with 2,400 participants included C-level representatives from Deutsche Telekom; Vodafone;

ANGA moves to June 2021

“The postponement has become inevitable due to the virus pandemic and the corresponding advice from health authorities. Nevertheless, we have been delighted with the understanding that many exhibitors showed us. The new date was received very positively. ANGA COM is not just a show and a business for us, but a deeply loved event,” commented Dr. Peter Charissé, managing director of ANGA COM.

Conference participants and exhibition visitors, who had already registered, could choose whether they wished to use their tickets for the event in 2021, or cancel them free of charge, by e-mailing ticket@angacom.de.

ANGA COM has enjoyed successful and long-term cooperation with the SCTE™, The Society for Broadband Professionals. For many years, both organisations have developed a conference panel together (moderated by Mike Thornton, SCTE's International Ambassador and newly appointed Vice President). A special conference programme this year was planned, to celebrate the SCTE's 75th anniversary, at ANGA COM but this will now be postponed to 2021.

The SCTE and ANGA will also be sending several winners of its joint bursary programme to ANGA COM in 2021 to enjoy
